

THIS IS YOUR INVITATION

TO AN EVENT THAT CAN SHAPE THE LIVES OF CANADIAN CHILDREN

How well are children doing in Canada? What will Canada do when the facts show that some children aren't as healthy, safe and cared for as they could be?

Tune in to a special UN webcast to hear the answers – and turn up the volume to ask some questions of your own.

For the first time ever, listen to the Government of Canada answer questions about children's rights from the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child through a live webcast.

Committee members have studied reports from the government as well as children's organizations like the Canadian Coalition for the Rights of Children and UNICEF Canada. They will ask the tough questions and suggest ways for Canada to meet its responsibility for all children in Canada.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

Host a Viewing Party. Explore the issues (from child poverty to Aboriginal children's rights) and share your views on the kind of Canada you want for every child and youth.

- WHO? This concerns all Canadians, particularly children and youth.
- WHEN? On September 26 & 27, stream the webcast at treatybodywebcast.org. Then follow the live blog at rightsofchildren.ca.
- WHERE? Visit unicef.ca/turnupthevolume for viewing times, a Party Kit, information about children's rights and Canada's dialogue with the UN, and ways to use social media to amplify your voice.
- WHY? You have the power to do more than listen. This is your chance to express your views as a Canadian who cares about children and their rights.
